Lighthouses, cultural treasure

The origin of the lighthouses is lost in the timeline, in the writings about ancient Alexandria. Although its function was always the same, to guide the sailors to a good port. They are elements that had, have and will have historical, archaeological, architectural and artistic relevance. Nowadays there are still lighthouses in operation and others that are already in disuse but that we must try to preserve and carry out a dialogue between the new technologies and the old structures. The project seeks to value the material heritage of the lighthouses, and the intangible heritage with the different languages and the relationships of the lighthouse keepers with the neighbors of the different areas, that it is the students who are discovering how these traditional and unique constructions are , in many cases, a nexus between countries.
