

Write ten of these people, places and things in the thought bubbles. Don't write them in this order.

- a place you're likely to visit before the end of the year
- someone who's bound to phone or email you today
- something you've done that you're unlikely to ever do again
- a relative who might come and visit you later this year
- a place in this town/city that you may well go to this weekend
- someone in another town/city that you're sure to speak to soon
- something you'll probably be given on your next birthday
- someone who you may end up celebrating the next New Year with
- a place you've been to that you're sure to go back to one day
- something that you may well buy before the end of the month
- a place you've been to that you might never go to again
- something you can't ever imagine doing
- the place where you're likely to be celebrating your next birthday
- a close friend that you're unlikely to see (or see again) this year
- something that you'll definitely keep for the rest of your life

